Partnerships in Research: Synergy that Generates Community Benefits and Academic Advancement

Presented by:
Dr. Donald Vereen, Jr., MD, MPH
Director of Community Academic Engagement in the Prevention Research Center of the University of Michigan School of Public Health

In this presentation, Dr. Vereen will address issues including:
- The spectrum of community-based research,
- The value added by involving and engaging the community in research endeavors,
- What the “community” can teach the academy,
- What the "academy" can teach the community,
- The emerging emphasis of translating research to practice and to the public, and
- The challenge of developing and maintaining community/academic partnerships.

Within this talk, Dr. Vereen will also draw from his work in the areas of substance abuse and addiction.

Dr. Vereen bio can be found on the Center’s website: http://www.olemiss.edu/depts/cetl/
